

LLM PERFORMANCE ASSESSMENT ACCORDING TO CHATGPT

As an input file, the AI was provided with our PowerPoint report, using the following command:

“Give us your opinion on our planning and execution of this sprint, based on our sprint review. It also includes a brief line of feedback on the performance of each team member.”

As an output he replied:

“According to the sprint summary and the sprint review:

1. Planning: They had a well-structured sprint with a backlog of 20 stories, 10 bugs and 22 tasks, plus management tasks. Despite a slightly delayed start (starting on 03/10 instead of 01/10), the planned completion date was respected (27/10), even with an execution of 120 hours instead of the planned 100, demonstrating commitment to meeting deadlines.
2. Execution and Completion: The team fulfilled all the User Stories (US), resulting in a minimum viable product for the client. This is a positive point, given that they managed to achieve the sprint's main objective.
3. Retrospective:
 - Positive Aspects: All US were completed, which represents a complete execution of the planned functionalities.
 - Challenges: Unfortunately, the document doesn't detail specific problems, but it would be useful to identify areas for improvement to avoid repetition in future sprints.
 - Future Actions: Recording lessons learnt and action items will help to adjust processes or practices within the team.

Overall, your organisation in planning and the effort to complete everything on time were strong points, even with a higher-than-expected effort.”

“Diogo Veiros: Showed commitment and was consistent in his tasks, taking part in meetings, which indicates good communication and collaboration with the team.

Diogo Pereira: Contributed regularly and took responsibility for key tasks, showing good commitment to the sprint's objectives.

Tiago Sampaio: Performed solidly, taking on important tasks, especially in technical areas, helping the team to maintain the flow of work.

Vicente Sousa: Showed collaboration and was present at all critical meetings, reflecting good coordination and teamwork skills.

Overall, all the members were dedicated and worked to fulfil the planned objectives.”
